Overhaul of Welfare, SS Nearly Done

WASHINGTON (AP) — Almost a year's labor designed to massively overhaul two of the government's biggest people programs—Social Security and welfare benefits—nears an end today in the Senate Finance Committee.

Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., said he would try to wrap up work on the reform bill today, though a final vote may be postponed until Monday.

The committee has made hundreds of changes in the program since it first began voting in March. Work began last July.

Still to be decided is how large across-the-board increases for the nation's 27 million Social Security recipients will be and how the new benefits will be financed.

The best guess is for a general increase of 20 per cent in benefits, although Long said the committee cited a possible figure of 15 per cent.

The bill makes far-reaching changes in Social Security, welfare, and two big health programs, Medicare for the aged and Medicaid for the poor.

The most controversial change voted so far knocks out of a bill as it passed the House President Nixon's welfare-reform plan for families with dependent children. The senators substituted tough work requirements for the heads of these families.

Nixon's plan contains a guaranteed annual income of $2,400 for a family of four and supplementary federal payment for the working poor.

The committee rejected both of these features, precipitating an almost-certain bitter floor fight.

The bill contains broad new Social Security benefits for widows, persons who work beyond 65, and retirees whose incomes are impaired by inflation; brings 1.5 million disabled persons under Medicare health protection; increases assistance substantially to aged, blind and disabled persons on welfare; and seeks to control spiralling Medicare and Medicaid costs.

In a major decision Thursday, the committee decided to extend, for the first time, Medicare coverage to many prescription drugs taken by aged persons at home.

The government would pay an estimated $700 million of the annual $1-billion cost, though stopping short of covering $1.4 billion worth of other prescription drugs used mainly to treat short-term illnesses.

Minibus Used For Rocket Launch Pad

PHNOM PENH (AP) — The Cambodian government put a Volkswagen minibus on display today and said it was the launching pad used to fire three 107MM rockets at the Defense Ministry Monday.

It was the first daylight rocket attack in Pnom Penh in more than the years of war.

The red bus had been purchased from the head of city's 3rd Precinct a day before by three Chinese for just over $600, then it was rigged with crude launching ramps for three rockets. The missiles were fired at a range of less than 100 yards and one scored a direct hit on an upper floor of the building, killing three persons.

The car was captured after a chase through the city by a military police Capt. Lim Huot, who was in his own car when he spotted the minibus enveloped in smoke after one of the rockets was fired. But two men abandoned the vehicle in a back alley and jumped aboard motorcycles which had been following them.

"They fired two shots at me with a pistol," said the captain, who was not armed.

Inside the bus investigators found seven hand grenades, a 9mm Chinese automatic pistol and a quantity of homemade napalm, a jelly putty made by mixing gasoline with soap powder.

Jupiter Bound Craft Faces Peril

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — America's Pioneer 10 spacecraft bound for Jupiter might encounter even more space "junk" than expected when it begins the perilous crossing of the asteroid belt in July.

Project scientists reported Thursday that space debris detectors aboard the $100 million vehicle found five times more particles than expected during its three-month journey from earth to the orbit of Mars. Pioneer 10 was launched early in March and crossed the circle Mars inscribes about the sun May 26.

Scientists aren't sure what the higher particle density means, but Dr. Robert K. Sberman of General Electric, a project scientist, said one possibility is a greater than expected flux of space debris in the 25-million-mile-wide belt. Such a possibility is most worrisome to spacecraft controllers.

"We just can't figure the odds of a spacecraft-disabling impact in the asteroid belt" on what we know now, he said. "There could be 10 lethal impacts. Or we may find out the penetration chance is less than one in 100 million."

Safe navigation of the asteroid belt, which will take seven months, has worried engineers since the spacecraft was under construction. Particles in the belt, through which a vehicle has never flown, range from a rock several hundred miles across down to microscopic bits of dust.

But even the tiniest particle, if it had enough speed, could wreck Pioneer 10.

Nixon Approves Wage Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's Construction Industry Stabilization Committee has approved annual wage hikes averaging 5.1 per cent since Phase 2 economic controls went into effect.

The increases compare with ones averaging about 1.8 per cent 15 months ago.

At that time, the federalized trade union leaders had a 5.1 per cent maximum raise in their contracts.

"I didn't expect as much as this," she said. "The price averages are all down in the price areas where we are."

Female Feline Attends College

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — My two teen-agers are home from their first year at college, neither much the worse from their initial exposure to the throes of higher education.

Each has gained something from the experience, but on the whole I would say that Lady Dottie, our 14-year-old cat, benefited more than my daughter Tracy Ann, who will be 19 this month.

They were both students at Windham, a small coed college idyllically situated in the green hills of Putney, Vt.

To a middle-aged adult such as myself, who got a little lost sometimes while attending a large Midwestern state university, Windham is the post card image of what a small modern, progressive college should look like.

In its pleasant atmosphere Lady Dottie flourished mightily. Although she cut every class and set a perfect nonattendance record, I would say she learned more than any other freshman at the place this year.

She left our apartment home last September a shy and socially awkward overweight maiden.

She has returned an accomplished woman of the world, completely at home in drawing room, field or forest. Roaming the Vermont woodlands has given her a new confidence in herself. She is thin and beautiful and imperious—and somewhat annoyed at being forced to return to the tame indoor city life of her youth.

"I guess that Lady Dottie got more out of college than I did," Tracy said. "She's hardly afraid of anything anymore. She's popular with the students, she has fought and whipped two dogs, and made friends with two more. She likes it up there."

But Lady Dottie didn't go to hell as a result of the freedoms that modern colleges now allow. She never learned to smoke a reefer, and she turned an ever deaf ear to the midnight invitations of Vermont's moon-influenced amorous团委. She remains as chaste as the day she left the veterinarian's hospital years ago, and that's about as chaste as a cat can get.

At that time, the federalized trade union leaders had a 5.1 per cent maximum raise in their contracts.

"I didn't expect as much as this," she said. "The price averages are all down in the price areas where we are."

Wiretapping Upheld by 8th Circuit

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has upheld the legality of wiretapping in affirming the convictions of four men charged with possessing and transporting illegally imported heroin.

The action came four days after U.S. District Court Judge Joseph S. Lord III of Philadelphia ruled in another case that the 1968 federal wiretap law was "unconstitutional on its face." Judge Lord said it violated the 4th Amendment's protection from "unreasonable search."

But Lady Dottie didn't go to hell as a result of the freedoms that modern colleges now allow. Several Killed in Flash Flood

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP) — Being of scientific bent, Dr. Pang L. Man of Northville, Michigan, stuck two acupuncture needles into his own legs, and then had a surgeon cut a gash in his left leg.

Three bodies had been recovered by 3:30 a.m., and there were numerous other reported deaths, according to the Pennington County sheriff's office.

"We've lost people, but we don't know how many," said Sheriff Glen Best. "I'm afraid it could be quite a few."

Many of the injured persons were burn victims, as gas lines exploded. Rapid City officials were forced to turn off the main gas line.

An eyewitness said some cars were being swept down streets by the raging waters.

"A Volkswagen was floating down the street with the people hanging on and screaming for help," the woman said.

Authorities were urging residents to move to higher ground, but high water made it impossible to leave or enter one part of the city, sheriff's deputies said.

National Guardsmen, attending their two-week camp at nearby Camp Rapid, were put on alert. A guard spokesman described conditions in the city as "chaotic." Most of the city was without power.

Planes Hit Military Targets

By GEORGE ESPER

SAIGON (AP) — American warplanes streaked nearly 300 miles along North Vietnam's coastline attacking fuel depots, coal storage areas, bridges and other military targets near the four major cities of Haiphong, Thanh Hoa, Vinh and Dong Hoi, the U.S. Command announced today.

The Command said Air Force, Navy and Marine tactical fighter-bombers carried out more than 300 strikes from the demilitarized zone northward to Haiphong on Friday.

American B52s today rocked Dong Hoi with a shower of bombs aimed at supply depots on two sides of the city.

Other B52s struck North Vietnamese troop positions and staging areas only 23 and 27 miles northwest of the South Vietnamese capital. The raids were the closest to Saigon since the 1968 Tet offensive.

To all this, American medical men are reacting with statements ranging from "total rubbish" to "marvelous, exciting, a new era..."

The evidence whether either extreme must modify its view may not be long in forthcoming.

On the far northern front below the DMZ, B52 strikes killed 68 North Vietnamese troops on the southern flanks of Hue, about eight miles from the city, and South Vietnamese ground troops killed 32 more in a six-hour battle, the Saigon command said. It reported that three South Vietnamese soldiers were killed and 23 wounded.

In a delayed report, the U.S. Command disclosed the loss of an Air Force F4 Phantom jet 30 miles northwest of Hanoi during strikes Wednesday. The two crewmen are missing, raising to 37 the number of American airmen reported lost over North Vietnam since the resumption of the bombing April 6. Thirty-seven U.S. jets also have been downed over the North.

North Vietnam claimed that another jet was shot down Friday northeast of Hanoi but the disclosure publicly. The U.S. Command declined comment.

The Truman Doctrine 25 Years Later

It has been 25 years since the United States, faced with the turmoil of postwar Europe and feeling threatened by Communist movements in Greece and Turkey, responded with the most aggressive peacetime diplomacy in its history.

President Harry S Truman had laid down the theoretical groundwork earlier in 1947 in announcing "The Truman Doctrine" and calling for $400 million in aid for Greece and Turkey. Then in June, the Marshall Plan began its helping hand to rebuild all of free Europe.

The effect of those decisions are still being felt today.

Harry S Truman
in 1947, the "Truman Doctrine"

Harry S Truman, U.S. president, 1945-1952 (from his speech announcing the "Truman Doctrine," 1947):

"I believe that it must be the policy of the United States to support free peoples who are resisting attempted subjugation by armed minorities or by outside pressures. I believe that we must assist free people to work out their own destinies in their own way."

"I believe that our help should be primarily through economic and financial aid which is essential to economic stability and orderly political processes . . ."

"The seeds of totalitarian regimes are nurtured by misery and want. They spread and grow in the evil soil of poverty and strife; they reach their full growth when the hope of a people for a better life has died."

"We must keep that hope alive."

"The free peoples of the world look to us for support in maintaining their freedoms."

"If we falter in our leadership, we may endanger the peace of the world; and we shall surely endanger the welfare of our own nation."

WINSTON CHURCHILL, British prime minister, 1941-45, 1951-55 (from "Memoirs of the Second World War," published 1957):

"Without the massive dollar aid provided by the American administration, in spite of some hostility on the part of Congress, Europe might well have foundered into ruin and misery in which the seeds of communism would have grown at a deadly pace."

RICHARD FREELAND, historian, from "The Truman Doctrine and the Origins of McCarthyism," published 1967:

"The emotional and political forces and the patterns of belief which in aggregate might be called the 'Cold War consensus' that were to provide the essential energies of postwar anti-communism were quite fully developed by early 1948. These emotions were aroused and these patterns of belief developed, it is argued, as the result of a deliberate and highly organized effort by the Truman administration in 1947-48 to mobilize support for the program of economic assistance to Europe called the European Recovery program, or Marshall Plan. In the absence of this Cold War consensus, it seems likely that the events that fractured McCarthyism would have been accepted with relative calm."

DEAN ACHESON, U.S. secretary of state, 1949-1953

of a Communist threat, that such a threat would be viewed as calling, in the case of Southeast Asia, for an American response on a tremendous scale, without serious regard even to those main criteria that most of us in 1947 would have thought it natural and essential to apply."

WORLD OF WORK

C. E. of Milwaukee, Wis., writes: I applied for a factory job but was turned down because I'm a woman. The work is dangerous, but I've done it before and feel qualified. Since this firm makes supplies for the government, shouldn't it be an equal opportunity employer?

Dear C. E.: Yes. Federal contractors cannot refuse to hire qualified women by using the type of work as an excuse. They must apply working condition standards equally to both sexes unless sex is an essential qualification for the work, as in the case of actors, models and similar occupations.

H. R. of Louisville, Ky., writes: I note that, in some cases federal child labor laws conflict with state laws. Please clarify this apparent mix-up.

Dear H. R.: Every state has its own child laws. Where state and federal standards differ, the higher standards must be observed.

C. L. of Groton, Conn., writes: Please provide some basic guidelines to follow in hiring young people.

Dear C. L.: No. not in your capacity as a seller. However, the Occupational Safety and Health Act places safety obligations on employers who might not purchase equipment that doesn't meet the act's standards. As an employer, you do have responsibilities to your employees for their on-the-job safety and health.

Wedding Vows Are Repeated

MRS. K. LINDSAY COFIELD

In a candlelight ceremony with a train that swept to a Miss Sharon Kay Averyt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max R. Averyt, Houston, became the bride of K. Lindsay Cofield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Cofield of Hope, at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, June 3, in the sanctuary of Park Temple Baptist Church of Houston.

Marriage vows were exchanged before Rev. Robert Coogston in a double ring ceremony. Baskets of white gladioli flanked the altar setting of a fifteen-branch spiral candle on each side.

A program of nuptial music was provided by organist, Mrs. Joyce Kolk, and pianist, Miss Joy Henry, who accompanied Delbert Milstead as he sang "Lead Me Lord," and "Here's My Life."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of leafy Nottingham English and Venise lace. The empire bodice featured a high neckline with a sheer yoke and full Bishop sleeves. The slightly gathered skirt fell from the empress waist.

Arrington-Daugherty Wedding

Miss Lanette Arrington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Truman Arrington, became the bride of Wayne Daugherty, son of Mr. and Mrs. Denver Daugherty, all of Hope, at 7:30 p.m. May 19 in the Shover Springs Baptist Church.

Bro. Chester Bullock performed the double-ring ceremony before an arch of greenery and pink candles, flanked by two seven-branched candelabra holding pink candles.

Music was provided by Eddie Tally of Magnolia. Gary and Larry Daugherty brothers of the groom, served as ushers and lighted the candles.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white chiffon over silk, designed by a elect of Mike Tolleson, was treated to a green and white mandarin collar, bishop sleeves, and demi-fitted skirt. The floor-length veil, ornamented with appliques of Alencon lace, fell from a crown edged with drop pearls. Her bouquet was a cascade of white carnations and stephanotis centered with pink rose buds.

Mrs. Tommy Sumner of Magnolia was matron of honor. Her dress was of pink dotted swiss, and she carried pink and white carnations.

The mothers wore corsages of

Just What Are Refined Foods?

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Several months ago I ran an article about refined foods and colon diseases. You said the U.S. has a higher rate of colon disease than certain other countries. I didn't quite grasp the article because I didn't know what you meant by "refined foods." You mentioned that bran is good to take. Please tell me what refined foods are and just how do they affect the colon. Besides bran what else can a person eat to avoid this colon problem? I eat a good amount of egg yolks, cakes, candy, fried foods, bread and other fattening foods. I am 24 years old. Do you think I should start cutting these foods out of my diet.

Dear Reader — Yes, I do. The time to start doing something about staying young and healthy is while you still are—not after you have already lost your youth and your health.

The bridge player who doesn't know what his partner is trying to tell him is likely to go wrong but his errors aren't a matter for ridicule. There are some situations in bridge that only well developed expert partnerships can handle.

A well developed expert partnership would have no trouble settling South's four-spade contract. He would wheel it in against almost any other pair.

East should play the 10 of clubs at trick one. In theory this would be showing a doubleton club, but in that case South would hold six. That is so unlikely that West should have no trouble realizing that his partner is trying to tell him something.

When the hand was actually played, West read that 10-spot as a suit preference signal and shifted to a heart whereupon a grateful South rattled off 11 tricks.

West should have thought a little further. He should have reasoned that if East did hold the ace of hearts there was no great hurry about a heart play. That ace of hearts was not going to run away.

Then what did the 10 of clubs play really mean? It meant that East held the queen and wanted to tell his partner to lead a low club and put him on lead, so he could return a diamond and set the contract.

'Small Problem' Stays Small

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

Please do not cast this letter aside, though it may seem like a small problem to you. That's the trouble: I'm so small-bosomed that boys in my grade call me "flat top," and even some of the girls tease me.

I fought with Mom to wear a padded bra. She said it would look stupid, and when I finally won, she was right. The first day, boys noticed it immediately and was I teased! So that cuts out that solution.

I can't afford those fancy exercisers and gadgets and anyway Mom would find out and say, "What do you need for—why when I was a kid we just grew naturally." She doesn't understand. I'm 13!!!

I tried looking up in books about the breasts, but the exercise directions didn't tell if they were for increasing or reducing.

If you have a solution to my problem I will be so grateful—FLAT TOP

DEAR F.T.:

Be thankful you're a flat top and not a blubber bust. And remember: kidding from girls is only to build their ego.

Kidding from guys? Well, it makes them feel like men. Keep your sense of humor—tell 'em it isn't your hopeless chest yet, and hope Mother Nature does her thing this summer.—SUE

DEAR FLAT TOP:

If Mother Nature doesn't come through, experiment with very slightly padded bras this summer, so that you can start school in the fall with a "next to natural" look. If the guys still kid you, tell 'em to go grow a beard.—HELEN

P.S. Exercises won't help. Time probably will.

DEAR RAP:

There's an ex-friend of mine who is always bugging me. She calls anonymously at all hours of the day, saying mean things, tells lies to others about me and otherwise tries to get me in trouble.

I told my Mom, cause she found me crying one day. Mom started to swear and call her bad names. I told Mom it was wrong to do this. (I was always taught not to swear.) She answered, "when are you going to be put up for sainthood?" real sarcastic like.

My point: Why do parents teach us not to swear when they do themselves?—12-YEAR-OLD

DEAR 12: You got your points crossed somewhere. Look, chum, your mother swore out of loyalty to you. Couldn't you let it go this time and get on with solving the problem of the jealous ex-girlfriend?—HELEN

DEAR 12:

Sometimes it's hard for parents to live up to their own rules—when so many things come down on them. On the other hand, if your mother punishes YOU for swearing, she shouldn't be so high and mighty that she can't take correction too.—SUE

P.S. How about a long talk with this girlfriend? (No swearing!) You might even become friends again, when you find out what's really bugging.—HELEN AND SUE

DEAR RAP:

I know you aren't cat experts but I have some questions. The cated synthetically anyway, but lilac and lily of the valley can be made to smell like the real flower from which it is impossible to extract oil. Twenty-four to 36 ounces of essential oils are used in a gallon of alcohol for perfume. Five to 10 ounces goes into a gallon of alcohol for cologne.

Most perfume chemists can duplicate just about any perfume on the market and occasionally Lorenson will make his wife a batch of one.

But when you bring perfume home in the brown laboratory bottle, it doesn't seem to have as much appeal as the intricately packaged one on the perfume counter at the store, he says.

There is a resurgence in the use of natural essential oils. Lorenson said playing down synthetics and this may be due to ecological influences. Rose and jasmine can not be dupli-

Alligator Hunting—Arkansas Style

Alligators were the subject of a hunt conducted by the Arkansas Game and Fish Commission and agents of the Department of the Interior recently.

Alligators have become overpopulated in some areas of the southern part of the state and were captured alive and unharmed for relocation.

The White River Refuge in northern Arkansas was the destination of those captured in the recent hunt.

Agents assisting in the hunt included Raymond McMasters, Bob Prescott, and Garland Swan of the Department of Interior; Dave Criner of Little Rock; Charles Rhodes, Sevier County Warden; and Joe D. Scott, Nashville, Southwest Arkansas Commissioner of the Game and Fish Commission.

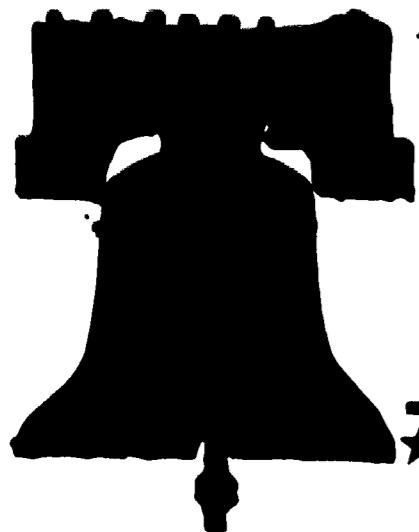

Local Wardens and key personnel included Gary Don Formby, Richard Broach, John Sunderland, and Ben Gee Waller.

The Game and Fish Commission asks all sportsmen to not molest or harm 'gators as there is a stiff penalty for the violator and the 'gator does quite a service for the sportsman. His chief diet being turtles and snakes with an occasional dead fish.

Hempstead County is credited with having about 50 per cent of the states alligator population, but due to man he is on the verge of becoming extinct. The 'gator is harmless unless it has young ones or is being molested.

POLLUTION CONTROL

Ecology, like charity, begins at home. There are many things the average citizen can do about pollution. It takes understanding to know how we can help. It takes national dedication of all our citizens to curb the pollution plight.

Many concerned citizens, along with industry has joined the massive movement to "keep it clean, keep it green". Millions, even billions are being spent to solve our problem.

Be informed, read and study our environmental problems. Purchase products in returnable containers. Check your car frequently for excessive emission. Plant a tree, avoid harmful insecticides. Buy low phosphate detergents. Walk more, use car pools.

Write your legislators and express your views. Become involved . . . it'll work!

People start pollution.

People can stop it.

Orioles Continue Winning

By KEN RAPPORST
Associated Press Sports Writer
Guess what? The Baltimore Orioles have a winning streak, two in a row.

Normally that wouldn't be news in recent seasons—but it is this year.

"We've had a slow start, true, but we're not over the hill yet," said Paul Blair after his three hits helped the Orioles beat the Texas Rangers 7-2 Friday night.

Their second straight triumph lifted the Orioles over the .500 mark, a most unlikely position for them considering two world champions and four pennant-winners in the last six years. Their current stature is second place in the American League East, two games behind the Detroit Tigers.

In the other American League games, the Cleveland Indians defeated the Minnesota Twins 7-1; the Boston Red Sox beat the California Angels 6-5 in a rain-shortened six-inning game; the Kansas City Royals topped the New York Yankees 1-0; the Oakland A's crushed Detroit 10-5 and the Chicago White Sox turned back the Milwaukee Brewers 3-2.

The Orioles took advantage of four Texas errors and nine walks to give Mike Cuellar only his third victory in eight decisions, a sub-par record for the constant 20-game winner. His bad start mirrors the Orioles' slow early pace.

Blair's three hits included a double in the fourth inning that provided the eventual winning run. After his first-inning single contributed to a two-run rally, Blair doubled home Don Buford from first base to give the Orioles a 3-1 lead.

The Baltimore center fielder also tripled to lead off the third inning in his 3-for-5 night, but was left stranded, one of 13 the Orioles left on base.

Gaylord Perry became the first 10-game winner in baseball, helping his offense as well with a home run, to lead Cleveland over Minnesota. Perry, who has lost four times, allowed six hits and struck out 11.

Rico Petrocelli's homer in the sixth inning gave Boston its rain-shortened triumph over California.

The blast into the Red Sox bullpen in right field came after the Angels had tied the game 5-5 in the top of the fourth, two on Larry Howard's first home run of the season.

Philadelphia's Short came into a tie game against Atlanta with two on and two out in the eighth. On one pitch he retired Darrell Evans on a grounder and became the winner when Larry Bowa opened the Phils' eighth with a triple and scored on Pete Koegel's single.

Sutton took an 8-0 record, a 1.12 earned run average and an 11-game, two-year winning string against the Pirates and even though he was beaten he threw better than his infielders.

Second baseman Bobby Valentine made a bad throw on Rennie Stennett's leadoff grounder and the Pirates cashed in for three runs on singles by Vic Davalillo, Roberto Clemente, Willie Stargell and Al Oliver before Sutton fanned Richie Hebner for the first out.

The bases were loaded when third baseman Steve Garvey made a wild throw on Manny Sanguillen's grounder but Sutton appeared to escape without further damage when Jackie Hernandez bounced to shortstop Bill Russell.

Astros Nip New York Mets 4-2

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Houston's Fred Gladding and Philadelphia's Chris Short supplied fast relief from their respective bullpens Friday night but Don Sutton of Los Angeles could have used something—namely, infielders—to ease the pain.

While Short threw one pitch and got the win in the Phillies' 4-3 triumph over Atlanta and Gladding did even better by tossing two pitches and picking up three outs in the Astros' 4-2 victory over the New York Mets. Sutton suffered through a four-hit, three-error first inning that saw Pittsburgh pour five runs across the plate and whip the Dodgers 5-1.

Coupled with Cincinnati's 6-3 verdict over Montreal, the Dodgers slipped into second place in the National League West, one-half game behind the Reds. In the East, the Mets had their five-game lead of week ago chipped to one-half game over the onrushing Pirates.

In the only other NL action, Bob Gibson won his fourth consecutive game as St. Louis edged San Diego 3-2. The Chicago Cubs and San Francisco were rained out.

Gladding lumbered out of the Houston bullpen with the Astros clinging to a 3-1 lead in the eighth inning and found a Met on every base and none out following two walks and a fielder's choice.

Gladding threw a sinker and Rusty Staub grounded into a forceout as a run scored. He threw another and Cleon Jones rapped into an inning-ending double play. After Jim Fregosi opened the ninth with a single, Gladding fed a double play—the Astros' fourth of the game—to Ken Boswell.

He also picked up his second major league run batted in—he first came up to the big leagues in 1961—with a squeeze bunt off Mets reliever Tug McGraw in the ninth. Houston tagged Jon Matlack for three runs in the fourth, two on Larry Howard's first home run of the season.

Philadelphia's Short came into a tie game against Atlanta with two on and two out in the eighth. On one pitch he retired Darrell Evans on a grounder and became the winner when Larry Bowa opened the Phils' eighth with a triple and scored on Pete Koegel's single.

Sutton took an 8-0 record, a 1.12 earned run average and an 11-game, two-year winning string against the Pirates and even though he was beaten he threw better than his infielders.
